Recent developments

A. New standards considered by the International Labour Conference at its 93rd Session (May-June 2005)

1. Work in the fishing sector

1. At its 92nd Session (June 2004), the International Labour Conference held a first discussion of a comprehensive standard (a Convention supplemented by a Recommendation) on work in the fishing sector. The second discussion took place at the 93rd Session (May-June 2005) of the Conference, and the resulting proposed instruments were voted on in plenary after a lively discussion. The Convention failed to be adopted for lack of quorum, while the Recommendation was adopted. As a consequence, the Conference adopted a motion requesting the ILO's Governing Body to place on the agenda of the 96th Session of the Conference in 2007 an item concerning work in the fishing sector based on the report of the Committee on the Fishing Sector of the 93rd Session.

2. At its 294th Session (November 2005), the Governing Body followed this request and included on the agenda of the 96th Session of the International Labour Conference an item concerning work in the fishing sector with a view to the adoption of a Convention supplemented by a Recommendation.<sup>1</sup> In its decision, the Governing Body specified that the Conference should use as a basis for its discussion the report of the Committee on the Fishing Sector of the 93rd Session as well as the outcome of further tripartite consultations.

2. Promotional framework for occupational safety and health

3. As a follow-up to the Global Strategy on Occupational Safety and Health adopted in 2003 following the first general discussion based on an integrated approach, the Conference held a first discussion in June 2005 on a proposed promotional framework for occupational safety and health. The Conference Committee decided, by a vote, against the proposal to adopt a Declaration for such a purpose and preferred the solution that the proposed framework should consist of a Convention and a Recommendation.

<sup>1</sup> The Legal Adviser, in an opinion provided to the Conference, noted that the motion referred to the report of the Committee on the Fishing Sector that had proposed both a Convention and a Recommendation. He concluded that, when the matter was being reviewed, it would be necessary to review the Recommendation and probably to adopt a new Recommendation that would replace the Recommendation adopted in 2005.

The Conference Committee also reached consensus on the proposed texts for these instruments. In the plenary discussion on the report of the Conference Committee, the Employers' group expressed disappointment that their proposal for a Declaration had not been agreed to, and the Workers' group stated that the new proposed standards did not meet their expectations on the content of an instrument establishing a promotional framework in this area. They also considered that the links to the workplace and to some key ILO instruments on occupational safety and health should be made more explicit in order to ensure that the proposed instruments promoted the relevant existing instruments effectively.

4. With a view to the preparation of the report for the second discussion in 2006, and against the background of the comments made, the views of governments were sought not only on the proposed instruments, but also specifically on how the link should be made between these proposed instruments and the relevant, existing occupational safety and health instruments. The views of governments were also sought on whether the new instruments should contain a reference to basic principles governing either national policy or specific workplace measures on occupational safety and health, such as rights, duties, responsibilities, information, training, and workplace safety and health committees.

5. The replies received from constituents in 62 member States indicate a broad support for the proposed instruments. Different views were expressed as to the manner in which a link be established between the proposed Convention and existing instruments in the area of occupational safety and health as well as on the question whether the instrument should include references to basic rights related to occupational safety and health. On the latter issue, some attached great importance to including such references while others took the view that such references might limit the promotion potential of the instruments and that the proposed Convention might become more difficult to ratify.

B. Standards-related items placed on the agendas of the International Labour Conference and the Governing Body

1. Working time

6. During the 93rd Session (May-June 2005) of the International Labour Conference, the Conference Committee on the Application of Standards discussed the General Survey of the Committee of Experts on working time. Following a rich and varied discussion on the continued relevance of Conventions Nos. 1 and 30 and possible future ILO action in the field of working time, it was agreed that the Office would prepare a paper for the 294th Session (November 2005) of the Governing Body summarizing the views expressed during the discussion to assist the Governing Body in determining the appropriate course of action. In line with the Conference Committee's message that the ILO should not consider a normative approach, but should explore innovative ways to move ahead, it was suggested that such action could include the holding of a tripartite meeting of experts on the topic of working time. At its 294th Session (November 2005), the Governing Body approved the Office proposal for the formulation of a strategy for possible future ILO action on working time. It also approved the organization of a tripartite meeting of experts to review and advise on modern working-time arrangements. The meeting would undertake a comprehensive analysis of the issue of working time in all its multiple dimensions. It could outline an integrated framework of principles and policy options which might serve as a basis for a general discussion on working time and related issues at a future session of the International Labour Conference, should the Governing Body decide to hold such a discussion. In March 2006, the Office will submit to the Governing Body a document containing concrete proposals on the agenda, the composition and the financial implications of this tripartite meeting of experts.

2. The Maritime Labour Convention

7. At its 280th Session (March 2001), the Governing Body approved a recommendation by the ILO Joint Maritime Commission in January 2001 (the Geneva Accord) to develop a new instrument consolidating the existing body of more than 60 maritime labour instruments into a single instrument. The instrument was discussed and adopted at the 94th (Maritime) Session of the International Labour Conference (Geneva, 7-23 February 2006).

8. The Maritime Labour Convention is unprecedented in several respects. It is a single international labour Convention worded in simple and clear terms, which consolidates almost all of the over 60 maritime labour Conventions and Recommendations currently in force in a comprehensive instrument setting out the conditions for decent work in the increasingly globalized maritime sector. It constitutes what has been called the “fourth pillar” of the international regulatory regime for shipping, complementing the key Conventions of the International Maritime Organization. The instrument contains several innovative features designed to enable its early ratification by the vast majority of ILO member States active in the maritime sector and to ensure that its provisions are effectively implemented and enforced and easily updated. The underlying approach is based on the idea of “standing firm” on rights while providing for some flexibility as to national methods of implementation.

9. It should also be underlined that the process of developing the Maritime Labour Convention differed from the more usual process of drafting international labour instruments. Thus, the content of the draft Convention was carefully worked out, over the last four years, in tripartite meetings under the auspices of a high-level tripartite working group established by the Governing Body. The consultation process culminated in a recommended draft for a Convention on maritime labour standards which was submitted to a Preparatory Technical Maritime Conference (PTMC) held in September 2004.

10. The draft Convention submitted to the Conference for adoption was based on the text adopted by the PTMC as well as the tripartite consensus reached in a subsequent intersessional meeting convened by the PTMC (and held in April 2005) to resolve certain remaining points at issue and to consider a series of amendments which the PTMC did not have time to address. At the intersessional meeting, the parties succeeded in reaching tripartite consensus on almost all the outstanding issues, with the exception of a few items, such as the conditions for entry into force of the Convention, which the Meeting felt could more conveniently be left to the Maritime Session of the Conference itself. The PTMC also adopted resolutions emphasizing the need in particular for technical cooperation and support to Members to assist in the implementation of the Maritime Labour Convention, once it was adopted.

3. Technical cooperation and employment relationship

11. After a first discussion concerning the agenda of the 95th Session (May-June 2006) of the Conference in November 2003, the Governing Body selected seven proposals for more in-depth examination at its March 2004 session. Based on this selection, the Governing Body decided in March that, in addition to the standing items that the Conference would have before it, as well as the second discussion on the promotional framework for occupational safety and health, the following items should be placed on the agenda of the 95th Session of the Conference: (a) the role of the ILO in technical cooperation (general discussion); and (b) the employment relationship (standard setting, single discussion).

C. General discussions based on an integrated approach: New discussion and follow-up

1. Promotion of youth employment: New discussion

12. Following a general discussion based on an integrated approach, the Conference during its 93rd Session (May-June 2005) adopted conclusions to promote pathways to decent work for youth.

13. The conclusions recalled in particular that the principles of the Employment Policy Convention, 1964 (No. 122), are fundamental to any employment policy directed at young people and that training policies and active labour market policies and programmes based on relevant international labour standards can greatly help young people to find decent work. The conclusions include a plan of action, under which the ILO should strengthen partnerships with international financial institutions and United Nations organizations with a view to giving a central place to the promotion of youth employment in development policies and poverty reduction strategies.

2. Migrant workers: Follow-up to a general discussion based on an integrated approach

14. It should be recalled that, following the second general discussion that took place on migrant workers in 2004, the International Labour Conference adopted a resolution concerning a fair deal for migrant workers in the global economy. The follow-up to this discussion in 2005 focused on the development of a non-binding ILO multilateral framework on labour migration. The draft framework was reviewed at the Tripartite Meeting of Experts on the ILO Multilateral Framework on Labour Migration held from 31 October to 2 November 2005 and will be discussed by the Governing Body in March 2006. The International Labour Standards Department, including the standards specialists in the field, and the International Migration Programme also continued their work to promote the ratification and implementation of the Migration for Employment Convention (Revised), 1949 (No. 97), and the Migrant Workers (Supplementary Provisions) Convention, 1975 (No. 143). It should be noted in this respect that the ratification by Albania of Convention No. 97 was registered in March 2005. The Department also participated in meetings of the Organization of Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) relating to migration issues.

D. Discussions within the Governing Body on improvements to the ILO's standards-related activities

1. Outlines for a future strategic orientation for standards and for implementing standards-related policies and procedures

15. At the 292nd Session of the Governing Body (March 2005), the Office presented a progress report providing an overview of the various discussions and decisions concerning standards-related activities by both the Governing Body and the International Labour Conference since 1994. The objective of the progress report was to permit an assessment of the progress made and of the need and scope for any further action on the subject. The outcome of the discussion was threefold: (1) a consensus that nearly all the aspects of the ILO standards system have been examined with some concrete results; (2) the launch of a campaign for the ratification or acceptance of the Constitution of the ILO Instrument of Amendment, 1997, which concerns the abrogation of obsolete Conventions;<sup>2</sup> (3) a paper to be prepared by the Office for the 294th Session of the Governing Body (November 2005) outlining a future strategic orientation for standards and for implementing standards-related policies and procedures.

16. With respect to the campaign for the ratification or acceptance of the Instrument of Amendment, the Director-General wrote to the 96 member States which have not ratified or accepted the Instrument as yet. His letter was accompanied by a document containing commonly asked questions and the corresponding answers with a view to facilitating a clear understanding of the purpose and object of the constitutional amendment. It is hoped that the campaign will permit the entry into force of the Amendment and the abrogation of the Conventions on which agreement has been reached that they are obsolete, and which meet the conditions set out in the Amendment.

17. The Office paper submitted to the 294th Session of the Governing Body (November 2005) proposed a strategic orientation based on four interrelated components. The first component was to be directed at a better promotion and application of the existing corpus of up-to-date ILO standards. One of the elements in this respect would be to promote an improved knowledge of the real impact of standards in all member States, including development realities. The aim would be to improve the impact through greater implementation and wide-scale ratification of all relevant international labour standards. The means of achieving this objective would essentially be technical cooperation and proposals for standards-setting activities primarily directed at the updating and enhancement of the acceptability of existing standards. In order to reinforce the Office's capacity in this area, it was considered necessary for it to have available a wide range of tools, including empirical evidence concerning the economic impact of standards, which would become an important area of research for the Office. The second component would be directed towards achieving a modernized, integrated and coherent supervisory system. Some suggestions put forward in this respect related to the need for a more simplified reporting system, for maintaining a balance between identifying serious breaches of standards and creating inducements for ratification and compliance; and taking into account solutions that have been implemented in the framework of other international treaties. It was also proposed to continue consultations on the functioning of the Conference Committee on the Application of Standards. The Office suggested, as the third component, to put in place an effective communications strategy on international labour standards. In order to enhance this component, the Office proposed to identify and develop a number of tools that would enable it to reach the broadest public, in addition to the ILO's tripartite constituents. The fourth component presented related to integrating standards and technical cooperation and assistance and in particular to the need of an effective programme of advice, assistance and capacity building in order for standards to support development objectives. Such a programme would not only be directed at assisting countries in implementing the standards set out in the Conventions and Recommendations, it would also be directed at assisting countries that have not ratified the Conventions or given effect to the Recommendations to enable them to be in a position where they can ratify.

18. In the light of the comments made during the discussion based on the Office paper, the Governing Body decided to approve the actions proposed by the Office in the implementation of a strategic orientation for standards and for implementing standards-related policies. The Governing Body invited the Office to hold consultations with tripartite constituents by its next session and to prepare a progress report for the period November 2005 to March 2006.

2. Other matters

19. At its 292nd Session (March 2005), the Governing Body adopted the revised Memorandum concerning the obligation of submission to the competent authorities. The revised Memorandum seeks to assist governments to discharge their obligations, particularly by explaining the aims and objectives of submission and the nature of a competent authority, as well as by emphasizing the importance of tripartite consultations on the proposals to be made to the competent authorities. A document on the preparation of a manual for drafting ILO instruments was also submitted to the Governing Body at its 292nd Session (March 2005). This manual is intended as a work of reference for all those involved in the process of developing and drafting international labour standards. The Governing Body requested the Office to proceed with the modifications needed to facilitate the use of the manual by the different types of potential users. An electronic version of the manual was presented by the Office to the Governing Body during the 294th Session. This version had been prepared by the ILO Training Centre in Turin and was designed for publication on the ILO web site. In response to concerns expressed as to the difficulty for some people to access the Internet version of the manual, the Office explained that three versions of the manual were planned at present: the complete printed version (which already existed), the Internet electronic version and the same version available on CD-ROM. The latter version could possibly be added to a CD on standards produced by the International Labour Standards Department. In addition a shorter print version of the manual was being considered that could be used as a quick reference work by the Conference delegates.

Constitutional and other procedures

A. Measures taken under article 33 of the ILO Constitution: The question of the observance by the Government of Myanmar of the Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (No. 29)

1. Background

20. At the 83rd Session of the International Labour Conference in June 1996, a complaint was submitted under article 26 of the Constitution concerning the observance by Myanmar of the Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (No. 29). The Governing Body decided to establish a Commission of Inquiry to examine the complaint. This Commission completed its report in July 1998, concluding that Myanmar's obligation under Article 1, paragraph 1, of Convention No. 29 to suppress the use of forced or compulsory labour was violated in law and in practice. In March 1999, the Governing Body decided to include the question of the application of Convention No. 29 by Myanmar on the agenda of each session of the Conference.

21. At its 87th Session (June 1999), the International Labour Conference adopted a resolution under the terms of which the Government should cease to benefit from any technical cooperation or assistance from the ILO, except for the purpose of direct assistance to implement immediately the recommendations of the Commission of Inquiry. Under another resolution adopted by the Conference at its 88th Session (June 2000), the constituents of the ILO were invited, under article 33 of the ILO Constitution and on the recommendation of the Governing Body, in particular to review the relations that they may have with Myanmar and take appropriate measures to ensure that Myanmar cannot take advantage of such relations to perpetuate or extend the system of forced or compulsory labour referred to by the Commission of Inquiry.

22. A number of technical missions were undertaken and in the framework of the "Understanding on an ILO Objective Assessment" concluded on 19 May 2001 the Government of Myanmar agreed to receive a high-level team to carry out an objective assessment with respect to the practical implementation and actual impact of the framework of legislative, executive and administrative measures reported by the Government, within the overall objective of the complete elimination of forced labour in Myanmar in law and in practice. The Government subsequently accepted the appointment of an ILO Liaison Officer to Myanmar charged with conducting all activities relevant to the prompt and effective elimination of forced labour.

23. In May 2003, the Government and the ILO agreed on a Joint Plan of Action on the elimination of forced labour practices in Myanmar. However, this Plan of Action could not be implemented in view of the events which occurred at the national level. At its 291st Session (November 2004), the Governing Body requested the Director-General to field a very high-level team (vHLT) to evaluate the attitude of the authorities in Myanmar and to assess their determination to continue their cooperation with the ILO.

2. Developments in 2005

24. On 23 February 2005, having failed to secure the necessary meeting in order to complete its mandate, and before departing the country, the vHLT delivered to the Minister of Foreign Affairs a statement to this effect and attached an informal aide-memoire setting out the concrete steps on which it believed progress should be made.

25. At its 292nd Session (March 2005), the Governing Body noted the growing feeling that the “wait-and-see” attitude that prevailed among members since 2001 appeared to have lost its raison d'être. It thus unanimously agreed to transmit its conclusions to all those whom the ILC resolution of 2000 was addressed, with a view to them taking the appropriate measures. At the same time, the Governing Body made it clear that the ILO was not closing the door to the resumption of a positive dialogue with the national authorities.

26. At its special sitting during the 93rd Session of the International Labour Conference, the Committee on the Application of Standards noted with grave concern the observation of the Committee of Experts, pointing out the inadequacy of the measures taken by the Government to give effect to the recommendations of the Commission of Inquiry. The Committee was of the view that the Governments, Employers and Workers, as well as other international organization should activate and intensify the review of their relations with Myanmar that they were called upon to make in the 2000 resolution and to urgently take appropriate action. The Committee also pointed out issues that needed to be resolved urgently.

27. In October 2005, a representative of the Director-General joined the Liaison Officer for consultation with the Minister for Labour to seek clarification of the intentions of the authorities through an informal and frank discussion. During the discussion the Myanmar authorities indicated that they had already made the decision to withdraw from the ILO, but that the notification of this decision had been delayed in order to examine if other options were available. They also indicated that Myanmar was not willing to engage in any review of the steps recommended by the vHLT nor of the Plan of Action. The only mechanism which could be acceptable to them in dealing with complaints of forced labour was through the current ILO presence.

28. Numerous members expressed a feeling of grave concern about the degradation of the situation in Myanmar during the 294th Session (November 2005) of the Governing Body. The Governing Body firmly rejected what appeared as attempts to influence the ILO's position through various forms of pressure and intimidation, including that of withdrawal. It reiterated its full confidence and support for the Liaison Officer of the ILO and the authorities were urgently requested to guarantee full exercise of his functions. A number of Members were of the view that the only way left for the Organization, in light of the events that had transpired, was to enable the Conference itself to revisit the measures adopted in the 2000 ILC resolution under article 33 of the Constitution by placing a specific relevant item on its agenda. However, taking into account the willingness to cooperate expressed by the Ambassador of Myanmar before the Governing Body and the fact that any step relating to action by the Conference would in any case need to be reconfirmed at its next session, the Governing Body requested the Government at various levels, including the senior leadership, to take advantage of the time available between November 2005 and March 2006 to resume an effective dialogue with the Office. It was understood, however, that to be meaningful any future dialogue should be based on the mandate provided by the conclusions of the International Labour Conference.

B. Representation submitted under article 24 of the ILO Constitution

29. Representations may be filed under article 24 of the Constitution by industrial associations of employers or workers, alleging that a member State that has ratified a Convention has failed to secure within its jurisdiction the effective observance of that Convention. Once declared receivable, representations are examined by a tripartite committee established by the Governing Body. Their findings are followed up by the Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations. The table below indicates developments concerning representations in 2005.

Country	Convention	Complainant organization	Current status

* The Governing Body decided to refer to the Committee on Freedom of Association the allegations relating to the application of Conventions Nos. 87 and 98.

C. Complaints submitted under article 26 of the ILO Constitution

30. Complaints may be filed under article 26 of the Constitution alleging that a member State that has ratified a Convention is not securing its effective observance. Complaints may be filed by another member State that has ratified the same Convention. The Governing Body may initiate the procedure either of its own motion or upon receipt of a complaint from a delegate to the International Labour Conference. The Governing Body may appoint a Commission of Inquiry to consider the complaint. Findings of the Commission of Inquiry are followed up by the Committee of Experts or the Committee on Freedom of Association.

Complaint against Belarus

31. At its 288th Session (November 2003), the Governing Body established a Commission of Inquiry to examine the implementation by Belarus of the Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise Convention, 1948 (No. 87), and the Right to Organise and Collective Bargaining Convention, 1949 (No. 98). The report of the Commission was submitted to the 291st Session of the Governing Body (November 2004). The Governing Body entrusted the Committee on Freedom of Association with the responsibility to supervise the follow-up to the recommendations of the Commission. The Committee on Freedom of Association carried out its examination in its 339th report (November 2005).

Complaint against the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela

32. At its 291st Session (November 2004), the Governing Body was informed of a complaint submitted under article 26 of the Constitution concerning the non-observance by the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela of the Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise Convention, 1948 (No. 87), and the Right to Organise and Collective Bargaining Convention, 1949 (No. 98). The Governing Body transmitted the complaint to the Committee on Freedom of Association to help it to decide whether the complaint should be forwarded to a Commission of Inquiry. However, at its March 2005 session, the Governing Body was informed that the Committee on Freedom of Association was not in a position to present recommendations, as all the Employer members present on the Committee had signed the complaint. The Governing Body therefore decided to send the complaint to the Committee on Freedom of Association for examination at its November session, following the renewal of its membership during the Governing Body elections in June. At its 294th Session (November 2005), the Governing Body approved the recommendation of the Committee on Freedom of Association set out in its 338th Report to send a direct contacts mission to the country before deciding on the action to be taken on the complaint.

D. Special procedures concerning freedom of association

33. At each of its last meetings (November 2004, March, June and November 2005), the Committee on Freedom of Association had before it more than 520 cases concerning some 69 countries from all parts of the world, for which it presented interim or final conclusions, or for which the examination was adjourned pending the arrival of information from governments (335th, 336th, 337th and 338th Reports). Many of these cases have been before the Committee on Freedom of Association several times. Moreover, more than 65 new cases have been submitted to it since the December 2004 meeting of the Committee of Experts. The Committee on Freedom of Association drew the attention of the Committee of Experts to the legislative aspects of the following cases: Argentina (2369), Bangladesh (2327), Burundi (2276), Canada (2257), Fiji (2316), Pakistan (2229), Portugal (2334), Russian Federation (2216 and 2251) and Ukraine (2038).

Technical assistance

A. Standards-related technical assistance and technical cooperation by the International Labour Standards Department

1. Technical assistance in reporting and other standards-related obligations

34. The International Labour Standards Department contributes to the many activities carried out by the standards specialists of the subregional offices concerning compliance by member States with their reporting and other standards-related obligations. In particular, the International Labour Standards Department, together with the Subregional Office in New Delhi and the ILO Senior Coordinator in Kabul, undertook a technical assistance mission in May 2005 during which the first national tripartite workshop on international labour standards was held. The participants in this activity, including representatives of the Government, workers' organizations and employers' organizations, engaged in a constructive dialogue on international labour standards after years of war and civil strife. As a result, the tripartite constituents submitted a report containing general information on the national legislation and practice relating to the international labour Conventions ratified by the country. Further, the Government delegation participated in the Committee on the Application of Standards during the 93rd Session (May-June 2005) of the International Labour Conference, for the first time in many years. A follow-up mission was undertaken by the Subregional Office in New Delhi in November 2005 during which an information session on the different types of reports relating to international labour standards was held with officials from the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs. Another tripartite workshop was organized to address more broadly all the procedures relating to the supervision of the application of international labour standards

2. Advisory missions

35. Advisory missions on freedom of association visited El Salvador (May 2005) and Mauritius (February 2005). Following an invitation by a parliamentary committee in the context of El Salvador's examination of the possibility of ratifying Conventions Nos. 87 and 98, the Office provided information on the content of these Conventions and the significance of their ratification. The mission to Mauritius took place at the invitation of the Minister of Labour, Industrial Relations and Employment to provide assistance for the preparation of future industrial relations legislation with a view to opening the way to the ratification of Convention No. 87, which eventually took place in April 2005. At the request of the Government, the International Labour Standards Department fielded a mission to Ukraine (September 2005) in order to hold consultations with the Government and the social partners in respect of the matters raised by Ukrainian trade unions in complaints currently pending before the Committee on Freedom of Association. Finally, a mission to Argentina as well as a high-level tripartite mission to Columbia took place within the framework of the follow-up to the conclusions adopted by the International Labour Conference Committee on the Application of Standards concerning the application by both countries of Convention No. 87.

36. At the request of the French Government, the International Labour Standards Department continued to provide close technical assistance in the field of labour inspection to a working party of the Ministry of Labour. The objective of this assistance is the elaboration of an ethical guide intended for labour inspection staff, which will apply the principles enshrined in the relevant international labour Conventions.

3. Training activities

37. Training and capacity building on ILO standards are an important part of the overall activities of the International Labour Standards Department. Training activities are often developed and undertaken in close collaboration with the training programme on standards of the International Training Centre in Turin.

38. At the end of 2005, the training programme on standards of the Turin Centre organized more than 40 training activities for about 1,000 people. Many of these activities were tripartite, although a significant number of them were specifically intended for workers' organizations (such as the training on standards for Colombian trade unionists, May 2005). In 2001, the Freedom of Association Programme was created within the context of the Turin Centre's training programme, in response to the many requests for training on this issue by constituents. Over 15 activities focusing on freedom of association are organized each year. Another important programme on child labour and forced labour was launched in September 2005.

39. The activities of the training programme on standards can be classified as follows:

- Tripartite interregional activities, implemented in Turin and developed for specific audiences and covering various topics such as: international labour standards and equality in employment, international labour standards and productivity, international labour standards and the challenges of globalization, freedom of association and the social dimension of regional integration, international labour standards and constitutional procedures for delegates at the Conference and international labour standards for judges, lawyers and professors of law.
- Regional, subregional and national activities dealing with issues chosen in close coordination with headquarters and the regions, such as: the tripartite seminar on national employment policies and human resources development (the Employment Policy Convention, 1964 (No. 122), and the Tripartite Consultation (International Labour Standards) Convention, 1976 (No. 144)), for Central African countries, and the tripartite seminar on freedom of association for rural workers in southern Africa; the training activity on international labour standards and constitutional procedures, focusing on freedom of association for the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya; the seminar on international labour standards and freedom of association for public administration workers (Brazil, Chile and Peru); the national seminars for judges (Albania, Burkina Faso, Ethiopia, Indonesia, Morocco and Senegal); the seminar on international labour standards and freedom of association for members of Parliament in Senegal.

40. More specific training activities for judges, lawyers and professors of law are mostly organized in conjunction with national institutions. Collaboration with the judiciary institutes of Chile, Madagascar, Morocco and Senegal continued, while new collaboration initiatives started with the Albania School of Magistrates, the Tribunal Superior do Trabalho do Brasil and the University of Buenos Aires. In 2005, the yearly regional programme for labour court judges of the Americas was held in Lima. The main objective of these activities is to equip legal practitioners with adequate tools to enable them to use international labour standards at the national level, including the comments and conclusions of the supervisory bodies.

41. The International Labour Standards Department continued its training and capacity-building activities to improve the application of ILO standards on equality and non-discrimination at the national level. Participants in these activities were government officials, including labour inspectors, representatives of workers' and employers' organizations, judges, lawyers and legal practitioners. These activities have led to increased understanding and technical knowledge of the principles and concepts underlying these standards. At the field level, training for judges on equality standards was carried out by the Department as part of the ILO technical cooperation projects implemented in Albania and Bosnia and Herzegovina, which specifically focused on enabling judges to rely on international labour standards in their work and strengthening the enforcement of anti-discrimination legislation.

42. With a view to increasing awareness and understanding of the importance of integrating gender-related data and information in reports submitted to the supervisory bodies, the Department also continued its efforts to include sessions on gender issues and international labour standards in the training activities organized annually in cooperation with the International Training Centre in Turin. The training should help constituents to address specific gender-related issues more effectively in the application of all of the ILO's Conventions. While it is still too early to assess the impact of this kind of training, it has been observed that an increasing number of government reports reflect gender concerns.

4. Promotional activities

43. The International Labour Standards Department and the Subregional Office in Moscow organized a National Tripartite Seminar on International Labour Standards and the Development of Social Dialogue in the Russian Federation in December 2005. The main topics discussed during the Seminar related to the amendments to the Labour Code of the Russian Federation, problems arising from the application of the ratified Conventions and ratification prospects for 2006. The seminar resulted in the formulation of a number of conclusions and recommendations which referred, in particular, to the necessity of strengthening the procedure for consultation with the social partners concerning all issues relating to labour and social matters.

44. Seminars on freedom of association were organized in Cameroon and the Russian Federation (February 2005). More specifically, the Office was invited by the Ministry of Labour of Cameroon to make a presentation on the principles and standards on freedom of association relating to the issue of trade union representativeness at a tripartite workshop. The Office was invited by the Federation of Independent Trade Unions of the Russian Federation to make presentations on freedom of association and the comments of the ILO supervisory bodies concerning Russian legislation at a seminar and workshop attended by trade union representatives from the region. The Office also participated in the OECD Employment, Labour and Social Affairs Committee meeting, which took place in Paris in May 2005, to reply to any questions relating to the ongoing monitoring process of the labour law and industrial relations reform in the Republic of Korea.

45. Concerning equality and non-discrimination, technical assistance continued to be provided to Indonesia to develop government guidelines on equal employment opportunities (EEO). The EEO guidelines were officially launched in December 2005 and will be used to underpin the implementation of the 2003 Manpower Act. Further assistance will be provided to constituents to promote the implementation of the guidelines and to develop workplace policies and practices in the area of equal employment opportunities. Assistance also continued to be provided to promote the ratification of the Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Convention, 1958 (No. 111), in China and Thailand; the Government of China ratified the Convention on 12 January 2006. Finally, following the ratification by Lithuania, in 2004, of the Workers with Family Responsibilities Convention, 1981 (No. 156), technical advice on the application of the Convention was provided to the national trade unions, which resulted in the adoption of a resolution advocating the promotion of family-friendly policies and practices.

46. A tripartite national seminar on wage protection was held in Bosnia and Herzegovina in April 2005. The technical seminar in Banja Luka and Sarajevo on non-payment of wages and wage guarantee funds was part of the effort undertaken at the regional level since 2001 to disseminate ILO standards on the protection of wages, in particular the Protection of Wages Convention, 1949 (No. 95), and the Protection of Workers' Claims (Employer's Insolvency) Convention, 1992 (No. 173), on the basis of social dialogue. Following closely on similar promotional and advisory activities held in Sofia, Bucharest and Kiev, the Bosnian experience confirmed that the issue of wage guarantee funds for the protection of workers' pay claims in the event of insolvency of their employer remains highly topical in Central and Eastern Europe. It also offered a significant opportunity for the Organization to enhance the visibility of its standard-setting action and to promote tripartite social dialogue.

47. In the area of social protection and working conditions, assistance was provided through national tripartite seminars, advisory and technical assistance missions and activities conducted in collaboration with the ILO International Training Centre in Turin. The activities included an assistance mission concerning the application of social security standards, in particular to the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya in July 2005. The application by this country of the Equality of Treatment (Social Security) Convention, 1962 (No. 118), was the subject of a special paragraph in 2003 by the Conference Committee on the Application of Standards. The assistance mission was able to clarify doubts regarding both the provisions of ratified Conventions and the observations made by the Committee of Experts. Finally, other training, promotional and assistance missions on the subject of social security, including the Social Security (Minimum Standards) Convention, 1952 (No. 102), and the European Code of Social Security were conducted in collaboration with the Council of Europe (Ireland, Lithuania, Romania, Slovenia and Ukraine).

48. With respect to the Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention, 1989 (No. 169), the comments of the ILO supervisory bodies have shown that one of the questions that arises repeatedly concerns the exploration and exploitation of natural resources and consultation with the indigenous peoples concerned. The International Labour Standards Department is currently carrying out activities in relation to two Latin American countries to assist them in the implementation of the consultations envisaged in the Convention as a means of resolving and preventing conflicts.

49. The Project to Promote ILO Policy on Indigenous and Tribal Peoples (PRO 169), of the International Labour Standards Department, implements a wide range of promotional activities. National projects have been initiated in Cambodia and Cameroon, and other projects are ongoing in Kenya, Morocco, Nepal and the Philippines. PRO 169 projects are implemented in collaboration with ILO field offices, indigenous peoples and ILO partners. National workshops have been held in Cambodia, Cameroon and Kenya. In Nepal, PRO 169 contributed to the preparation of a national workshop, and is funding initial consultations on decent work for indigenous nationalities in the country. In connection with ongoing activities, PRO 169 has undertaken three case studies on poverty reduction: two in Cambodia and Cameroon on the participation of indigenous peoples and the reflection of indigenous concerns in national poverty reduction strategy (NPRS) processes; and one in Nepal on indigenous peoples, poverty and conflict. Another study on the legal framework for the protection of the rights of indigenous and tribal peoples has been undertaken in Cameroon. The recommendations from all these studies are being followed up in the context of ongoing activities and projects at the national level. Further studies on the challenges of achieving the Millennium Development Goals in selected indigenous communities are currently being undertaken in Bolivia, Cambodia, Cameroon, Guatemala and Nepal. PRO 169 has also implemented a number of other activities including a technical seminar on strengthening the practical application of policies for supporting indigenous and tribal peoples through technical cooperation. In collaboration with the International Programme for the Elimination of Child Labour (IPEC), PRO 169 has also drafted a set of guidelines for addressing indigenous issues within the context of projects to combat child labour.

50. In June 2005, the International Labour Standards Department launched a new web site (www.ilo.org/normes) which provides an overview of the international labour standards system, with numerous links for further information. A related promotional booklet, Rules of the game: A brief introduction to international labour standards, was also published. Aimed at a non-specialist audience, this booklet provides an introduction to standards, discusses their importance in today's global economy and describes the subjects that they cover and how they are applied and supervised. The booklet was released with the 2005 edition of the International Labour Standards E-library (ILSE) CD-ROM. The Department also released a new CD-ROM containing the observations of the Committee of Experts in 2005, pending comments and the related discussions at the Committee on the Application of Standards in 2004. The Department continued to develop its information system on international labour standards, including the APPLIS, ILOLEX, LIBSYND and NATLEX databases. The country profiles formerly available in ILOLEX have been improved and moved to a new database platform in NATLEX. The country profiles provide one-stop access to the country-related comments of the supervisory bodies, information on national legislation and standards-related documents.<sup>3</sup>

51. Finally, in collaboration with the Freedom of Association Programme of the ILO International Training Centre in Turin, the Department issued a publication entitled Employers' organizations and the ILO's supervisory machinery, as well as the 2005 version of the Freedom of Association and Collective Bargaining Electronic Library, which contains information in three languages (English, French, Spanish) on the ILO standards relating to freedom of association, ILO procedures, the principles of the supervisory bodies and the cases of the Committee on Freedom of Association, as well as articles and publications.

B. Standards-related technical assistance and technical assistance in the regions

52. Specialists in international labour standards are serving with the field offices located in the following cities: Addis Ababa, Bangkok, Brasilia, Cairo, Dakar, Harare, Manila, New Delhi, San José and Santiago. Recruitment is under way to fill the post in the Regional Office in Beirut. Action has also been undertaken to rapidly fill the posts in the Subregional Offices in Moscow, Lima, Port-of-Spain and Yaoundé. The Subregional Office in Budapest does not have a standards specialist as such, but the Senior Specialist on Social Dialogue is in charge of carrying out certain activities concerning international labour standards with the support of the International Labour Standards Department, as appropriate. Examples of the activities undertaken in the regions are described below.

53. The Subregional Office in Bangkok undertook several training activities in relation to reporting and other standards-related obligations. Such training was provided to government officials from China, as well as from the Hong Kong and the Macau Special Administrative Regions. The training included an analysis of the pending comments of the Committee of Experts. Several training sessions were held in Mongolia on the same topic and one session involved the Government, the social partners and the National Human Rights Commission. Technical advice was also provided to the Ministry of Labour of Thailand on the submission of reports on the Equal Remuneration Convention, 1951 (No. 100), and the Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182), as well as to the Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare of the Lao People's Democratic Republic on reporting obligations and ratification of Conventions. In the field of labour legislation, advice was provided in Cambodia on labour law provisions in the light of various international labour standards and a formal tripartite process was facilitated for the examination of labour legislation. Labour law advice was also provided to Viet Nam, particularly in relation to child labour. A number of awareness-raising and advocacy activities were carried out to promote better understanding and implementation of fundamental Conventions. These included activities in Mongolia in the field of forced labour, which contributed to the ratification by the country in March 2005 of both the Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (No. 29), and the Abolition of Forced Labour Convention, 1957 (No. 105).

54. The Subregional Office in Manila, just before the Subregional Forum on Decent Work for South-East Asia and the Pacific in Melbourne, held a special introductory session in April 2005 for the new member States of Kiribati, Samoa, Solomon Islands, the Democratic Republic of Timor-Leste and Vanuatu. The session included a presentation on international labour standards in general and on reporting obligations. The Office provided technical assistance to review labour legislation, particularly in Fiji, Kiribati and Papua New Guinea, in the light of the Conventions ratified by those countries. In the Philippines, an overall framework of action has been developed for the promotion of ILO Conventions. The activities carried out within this framework up to now have primarily focused on ratification, with the ratification of 17 Conventions identified as a priority for the country. At the same time, special emphasis has been placed on strengthening the application of Convention No. 144. It should also be noted that activities to promote Convention No. 29 in the Philippines led to the ratification of the Convention by the country in July 2005.

55. The Subregional Office in New Delhi undertook a number of technical assistance activities based on the comments of the Committee of Experts. These include missions on constitutional obligations to Afghanistan (twice), Bangladesh (twice) and Pakistan and responses to complaints regarding freedom of association, discrimination on the grounds of caste and women's issues in Nepal. At the beginning of 2006, the Subregional Office in New Delhi will provide technical assistance to Bangladesh and India, based on the Committee of Experts' comments, focusing on the application of the Indigenous and Tribal Populations Convention, 1957 (No. 107).

56. The Subregional Office in Addis Ababa carried out several training and technical assistance activities. In particular, a training took place in Ethiopia on international labour standards as well as on the Occupational Safety and Health Convention, 1981 (No. 155), including on the comments of the Committee of Experts thereon. This training involved officials from the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs, labour inspectors as well as employers' and workers' representatives. Further, in light of a similar activity carried out in Madagascar, missions were undertaken to Kenya and the United Republic of Tanzania to establish and train an informal inter-ministerial team on the submission of reports on ratified Conventions. The objective of such activity is to ensure the involvement of all the ministries concerned in the drafting of reports as well as an appropriate distribution of workload among them.

57. The Subregional Office in Dakar carried out in Senegal, with the support of the ILO International Training Centre, several training activities for judges and Members of Parliament. It provided technical assistance to Cape Verde and Mali on reporting obligations. In the latter case, six officials of the labour administration were trained on reporting and other standards-related obligations. Several activities carried out in Gambia and Mauritania aimed at promoting the fundamental Conventions on the basis of the relevant comments of the Committee of Experts. With respect to the ratification of Conventions, an activity was undertaken in Cape Verde to promote the ratification of the Minimum Age Convention, 1973 (No. 138), as well as to examine ratification prospects for other Conventions. The ratification of the Collective Bargaining Convention, 1981 (No. 154), was promoted and directed at the tripartite constituents of Benin, Namibia, Lesotho and Senegal. Senegal continued to receive support in relation to the submission of ILO instruments to the competent authorities.

58. The Subregional Office in Budapest undertook technical assistance activities, mostly related to reporting and other standards-related obligations, in Serbia and Montenegro, Bosnia and Herzegovina and The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. The failure of the latter two countries to comply with their reporting and other standards-related obligations was discussed during the International Labour Conference in May-June 2005. In Serbia and Montenegro, the Office held, at both federal and republic levels, a tripartite seminar on ILO procedures relating to the submission of reports and replies to the comments of the supervisory bodies. The ILO national correspondent in Sarajevo has been working with a team of government officials in Bosnia and Herzegovina at the level of the State and of the two entities to assist in the preparation of reports for the next session of the Committee of Experts. A mission was undertaken in May 2005 to advise government officials in The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia on reporting procedures. Finally, it should be mentioned that Serbia and Montenegro and The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia ratified the Tripartite Consultation (International Labour Standards) Convention, 1976 (No. 144), respectively, in May and December 2005, as a result of the campaign launched to that effect by the Subregional Office.

59. The ILO Office in Brazil undertook a number of technical assistance activities in relation to the fundamental Conventions, particularly in the field of forced labour. Through the "combating forced labour project", it provided assistance to address issues raised by the Committee of Experts in its comments on the application of Convention No. 29. In particular, the project coordinates action in the fields of prevention and awareness raising in the context of the national campaign for the eradication of slave labour in Brazil. These activities have led to an increase in media coverage of the subject of forced labour, in the number of visits to the project's web site and in requests for information about its activities. With respect to the imposition of effective penalties, the project held a second round of debates on slave labour and organized a workshop in the 2005 World Social Forum to promote a dialogue between civil society, judges, labour inspectors and union leaders. In cooperation with the International Labour Standards Department, and at the invitation of the Ministry of Labour and Employment, an activity was carried out, in April 2005, to promote social dialogue, particularly in relation to the submission to the competent authorities of the instruments adopted by the International Labour Conference. The technical assistance provided in the latter field has already yielded some concrete results and the national authorities are pursuing their efforts in this respect. Finally, with respect to indigenous peoples, the Office actively participated with the Fundacao Nacional do Indio (FUNAI) of the Brazilian Justice Ministry in a unique event which took place in November 2005: the First International Symposium on Isolated Indigenous Peoples of the Amazon and the Gran Chaco region. An International Alliance for the Protection of Isolated Indigenous Peoples was created during the meeting. A declaration was drafted to alert the governments of Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay and Peru in which isolated indigenous peoples subsist. All of these countries have ratified the Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention, 1989 (No. 169), and the event contributed to the promotion of its application.

60. The Subregional Office in Port-of-Spain conducted workshops on international labour standards and the supervisory machinery in Antigua and Barbuda, Bahamas, Barbados, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Turks and Caicos (for the non-metropolitan territories of the United Kingdom) and Curaçao (for the non-metropolitan territories of the Netherlands). It also carried out special missions to Saint Lucia and Saint Vincent and the Grenadines to assist in reporting and other obligations and to provide updated briefings to the social partners. In this respect, it should be noted that Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has set up a unit to deal with ILO matters and has designated a full-time coordinator of the unit, who has been briefed and assisted. The submission of outstanding reports by some of the countries concerned is one of the principal results of these activities. The Subregional Office continued its efforts to improve the institutional capacity to address international labour standards, with emphasis on improving the functioning of mechanisms under the Tripartite Consultation (International Labour Standards) Convention, 1976 (No. 144), and enhancing participation in the process by employers' and workers' organizations. This was the case in particular for Barbados. In the field of labour legislation, comments on pending legislation raising issues of compliance with Conventions Nos. 87 and 98 were provided in Trinidad and Tobago. Advice was provided on the draft Labour Code in Saint Lucia with a view to incorporating provisions that address issues raised by the Committee of Experts.

61. The Subregional Office in San José carried out a mission to Haiti that focused, inter alia, on the persistent problem of non-compliance with standards-related obligations. The Government was provided with guidance on its constitutional obligations and the subject was also raised with the social partners in separate meetings. In response, the Government indicated that it would request training on standards for the recently installed tripartite committee. The Subregional Office also organized an additional three-day seminar for trade unions in Haiti on standards and child labour. In Guatemala, the Subregional Office organized a workshop for the staff of the Ministry of Labour in September 2005, addressing difficulties identified by the Committee of Experts in compliance with standards-related obligations, and providing an explanation of the supervisory mechanisms and special procedures.

62. The Subregional Office in Santiago undertook a technical assistance mission in relation to the comments of the Committee of Experts on the application of Convention No. 29, by Paraguay. These comments concern debt bondage in indigenous communities in the Chaco region. The Subregional Office in Santiago, in cooperation with the Programme on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (DECLARATION), commissioned a study in 2004 which confirmed the existence of debt bondage. As a result, a joint mission was carried out to Paraguay. This contributed to the acceptance by the Government and the social partners of the conclusions of the study, their recognition of the existence of debt bondage in the Chaco region and agreement that measures must be taken to eliminate forced labour. The Subregional Office in Santiago also carried out a mission concerning the application of the Minimum Wage Fixing Convention, 1970 (No. 131), by Uruguay. This long-standing issue, raised by the Committee of Experts, mainly concerns the procedures for fixing minimum wages and the role of tripartite consultation in this process. In response, the Subregional Office has developed a comprehensive technical assistance plan, involving the organization of seminars, workshops, studies and meetings, to assist Uruguay to reactivate its machinery for the fixing of minimum wages. The reactivation of wage councils was one of the principal results of this activity.

Specific activities undertaken in collaboration with other international organizations concerning international labour standards

63. The ILO participated in the meetings of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and its subsidiary bodies. For example, the ILO has established a closer working relationship with the United Nations Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous peoples.

64. The ILO also made substantial contributions to the work of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (UNPFII) in the area of the Millennium Development Goals and indigenous peoples (with specific reference to poverty reduction). It has also participated in the UNPFII's International Experts Workshop on Free, Prior and Informed Consent (January 2005), as well as in UNPFII's Fourth Session in May 2005. Recommendations to the ILO from these events are currently being followed up.

65. In accordance with article 26 of the European Social Charter, the ILO participates in an advisory capacity in the sessions of the European Committee of Social Rights responsible for supervising the application of the Charter. Since the last session of the Committee, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia has ratified the European Social Charter and Georgia and Malta have ratified the European Social Charter (Revised).

66. The ILO participated in a meeting co-organized by the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) and the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Vienna in July 2005: OSCE – UN OHCHR Experts' Consultation to Develop a Legal Framework to Prosecute the Exploitation of Trafficked Persons. The aim of the consultation was to assess the current jurisprudence of the relevant courts to analyse how the principles developed by this jurisprudence can be applied to the more specific situation of sexual exploitation.

67. The ILO has undertaken a series of training activities, including legal training, for four groups of indigenous fellows participating in the fellowship programme of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights. In addition, collaboration has been established with the Working Group on Indigenous Populations/Communities of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights to undertake a research project on the legislative framework for the protection of indigenous and tribal peoples' rights in Africa. In addition, the ILO has collaborated with the European Commission to provide training for its staff on indigenous issues.

Country profiles

The following country profiles provide information on the ratification and application of Conventions and on the submission of instruments adopted by the Conference to the competent authorities in a table format by country.

The ratifications section indicates which fundamental Conventions, priority Conventions, and other Conventions a country has ratified as of 31 December 2005. It does not list Conventions which have been denounced or which are not in force.

The section on reports requested indicates how many reports were requested from the country in 2005 and how many were received. Under articles 22 and 35 of the ILO Constitution, member States are required to submit reports at regular intervals on the application of Conventions which they have ratified or declared applicable to their territories. If a report requested was a first detailed report (which is required following the ratification of a Convention), the number of the Convention appears in parentheses.

The section on observations made by employers' and workers' organizations indicates for which Conventions comments were received by such organizations on reports submitted to them by governments. Article 23 of the Constitution requires each member State to communicate to the representative employers' and workers' organizations copies of the information and reports communicated under articles 19 and 22.

The section concerning comments of the Committee of Experts indicates what comments the Committee made during its session in 2005. It lists either "observations", which are published in the report of the Committee of Experts, or "direct requests", which are not published, but are communicated directly to the governments concerned. The list does not include comments made by the Committee in previous sessions for which action by governments is still requested.

The section on submissions indicates the sessions of the International Labour Conference of which adopted instruments have, or have not, been submitted by governments to the authority or authorities competent to consider further action, as required under article 19 of the Constitution. The number of the Conventions, Recommendations or Protocols are given in parentheses, preceded by the letter "C", "R", or "P" as the case may be, when only some of the texts adopted at any one session have been submitted. When the ratification of a Convention was registered, that Convention and the corresponding Recommendation are considered as submitted.
